The Sanctified Tactics

Consider fielding The Sanctified as a full horde to maximise both their great offensive and defensive potential. The Fierce rule allows them to roll additional two dice for wounding for each obtained 1 in the Wound Test, so the more dice they roll for attack and the more re-roll options they get, the more deadly they become. Try boosting the Fierce rule as much as possible. Attach one of the Champions to get +4 attacks to the pool – if it's the Champion of Gods, he will also give them the chance to re-roll all failed scores during the Weapon Skill Test or the Wound Test. Always pray with them, because they have a better chance for success thanks to the Faithful rule. Focus on the prayers for Fortune or Strength to increase the chance of adding more dice to the Wound Test (with possible 1s). Avoid praying for Agility unless necessary – keep a Command Group, the Mystic of the Reborn or the Champion of Nature close to them instead to make sure they charge successfully.

The perfect target for the full horde of The Sanctified is not an enemy full horde (although it can be) but rather a unit of 8-12 bases. If it's a small horde of 12 bases, try removing at least 1 base from it through magic spells, items or other abilities to make them lose a Horde rule before attempting to engage in combat with them – if The Sanctified are somehow charged first by such a unit, that unit will not get the charge bonuses, because it is not a Horde anymore. And even if the enemy gets The Sanctified first, you may still count on their Gold Armour!

Colour schemes:

Arox

Skin - warm green
Torsos - beige
Crests - purple red, red
Robes - red
Armour and weapons - gold
Gems - turquoise, blue-green

Attired in gold armour, The Sanctified are an inspiration to many Liagulians. This extraordinary unit of battle veterans plays a key role in the Arox army.
