Voutars Tactics

Keen Senses allow Voutars to rotate freely before moving or charging, so their units should vary from 4 up to 8 bases. Bigger units may have difficulties with rotating due to the obstacles throughout the battle. Treat Voutars as supporting units, not initiating the fight. Keep them slightly in the back and let your other units initiate the combat which Voutars could later join. Never charge the enemy's front, because Voutars will not benefit from their rule of doubling the bonus for attacking the enemy's flank or rear. Use your other unit to charge the enemy first and position them conveniently for the Voutars. Try not to waste Voutars' potential on defeating smaller units used as a bait when other enemy forces are near unless necessary.

Colour scheme:

Vaendral

Skin – stone grey, light grey

Fur – blue-grey

Eyes – orange, red

This is a race of multi-eyed mountain trolls called Voutars, whose blue-gray fur gives them a perfect camouflage among the rocks. Their red-and-orange eyes will track down every enemy.
